Growing Partnership, Improved Results

Coronis Health Coding Resources Drive Revenue Health Cycle

Stats

Our expanded partnership with Care Alliance and addition of specific coding resources produced results within six months of implementation:

- We reduced backlog of items in the pending coding review work queue from a high of eight days of charges to less than one day
- 19% reduction in overall days in A/R
- 29% increase in gross collection rate

Growing Coding Errors Leading to Stagnant A/R

Care Alliance Health Center, a mid-size health center located in Cleveland, Ohio, began their partnership with Coronis Health as a revenue cycle client. Care Alliance is one of six federally qualified health centers (FQHC) we support in Ohio and our third partner working on the OCHIN EPIC installation. Our billing team assumed responsibility for all billing functions post-charge capture, including claim submission, rejection and denial work, payment posting, and overall management of A/R. Coding – and review of coding errors – remained on the task list of the Care Alliance internal staff and providers.

As our partnership developed, the Coronis Health billing team and the internal Care Alliance team noticed a concerning trend. Pending charges requiring a certified coder review were rapidly accumulating, creating a backlog of A/R and putting charges at risk of aging beyond the filing limit. Despite the valiant efforts of the internal staff, the lists continued to grow. The impact ballooned to a high of over eight days of charges pending by the end of their fiscal year.

An Expanded Partnership

As we monitored this growing list of pending inventory, the Coronis Health coding team began to review the type of pending items. We realized our expertise and available resources could efficiently collaborate with our billing team and our partners at Care Alliance to reduce open A/R and increase revenue for these services.

Our coders are experts in the coding nuances relevant to our FQHC partners, encompassing various specialties, including family medicine, behavioral health, dental, obstetrics, podiatry, etc. in collaboration with our billing team and our partners at Care Alliance, we recognized an opportunity to expand our partnership and connect our coding resources.

Our coding team immediately dove into the backlogged work queue. We worked on completing diagnosis edits, modifier additions or corrections, reviewing uncoded notes to determine if a billable service was performed and documented, and offering coding support to the internal team at Care Alliance as needed. We worked closely with Care Alliance to establish a defined workflow to facilitate timely claim resolution to reduce aged A/R, minimize revenue lost due to coding errors and offer provider-specific feedback to help mitigate future returns.

Bringing Clients up to Speed

“Our internal team was consistently behind on addressing our coding edits due to the sheer volume and workflow required to address them. The assistance and expertise provided by the Coronis Health coding and billing teams have turned that tide – we were even recognized for our improvement by our system host’s most recent client scorecard!”

A Healthier Revenue Cycle

The collaboration of the Coronis Health coding and billing staff with our partners at Care Alliance produced significant improvement in the entire revenue cycle. Improved time to pay, increased collections, and reduction in aging are all key indicators of a healthy revenue cycle. Monitoring these and offering resources and expertise to assist with all aspects of an FQHC revenue cycle are our keys to success.

Coronis Health assuming management of coding tasks, has also freed internal Care Alliance resources to tackle other priorities within the health center. By delegating coding tasks to our team of certified coders with specific FQHC expertise, Care Alliance staff can focus on other vital tasks necessary to their mission of providing high-quality care to the underserved in Cleveland.

At Coronis Health, our goal is to manage the full scope of our FQHC client’s revenue cycle, from coding and charge capture to payment processing and A/R management. Through a full partnership with Coronis Health, our FQHC clients can reallocate valuable internal resources to manage other clinical and administrative duties critical to the ongoing operation and mission of the health center.

The Test of Time

April 2022 was the date set in February to return to Spectrum Medical Partners to see if their goals were met. As they prepared for their return to Spectrum, Coronis found that they had reached a steady revenue state by March 2022 month end.

Coronis Health and Spectrum Medical Partners worked together, built a solid partnership, and ultimately succeeded. The journey is not over, as Coronis continues to improve processes, increase revenue, and implement additional Spectrum Medical Partners affiliates that need this level of expertise and commitment to succeed.
